

CATALYST CONTEMPORARY

Joan Cox is a Baltimore native and a painter, photographer, graphic designer and writer. She is a MFA graduate from Massachusetts College of Art's low-residency MFA program at the Fine Arts Work Center in Provincetown.

Cox received her BFA in Painting from Towson University in Baltimore, Maryland in 1991. She has since then created many different bodies of work, exploring new mediums and exhibiting steadily. Cox began as a watercolor-based figurative painter, experimented with digital media and collage-based paintings and then transitioned into large oil and acrylic paintings. Her subject is consistent and focuses on the figure, both actual and implied. Recently, Cox shifted her focus to the portrait—individual artist portraits and double portraits of women in intimate relationships.

CATALYST CONTEMPORARY is a fine art gallery focusing on contemporary art that tells stories. Located in Baltimore's Mount Vernon neighborhood - the cultural heart of the city, Catalyst forges relationships between artists, collectors, and both creative & civic minded individuals. The gallery represents artists nationwide that tell dynamic and powerful stories.
