The Steel Yard is an industrial crafts center in Providence, RI, with studios for blacksmithing, welding, ceramics, jewelry and foundry arts. There is a public-art workshop, artists in residence and numerous creative small business tenants.

As the Director of the Steel Yard for 13-years, I had the opportunity to teach community art courses, manage over 200 public-art installations across New England, preserve a historic property, lead multiple strategic plans and capital campaigns, steward incredible philanthropic support, and work alongside hundreds of artists, thousands of students, teachers, professional craftspeople and inspiring colleagues from across the arts and business community.
