Su Knoll Horthy

I am an abstract painter whose artwork, through color, shape and form, evokes an emotive experience for the viewer. As part of a lineage of modernist and contemporary artmaking, my paintings reference the simple and pure geometry of non-objective abstraction, the atmosphere of color field theory, and the element of chance found in abstract expressionism.

As a practitioner, I use a variety of mediums and techniques, both bright and subdued colors, and compositional strategies to explore the materiality of painting. I begin a canvas with colors inspired by nature, random places, or other artists' paintings, whatever catches my eye, stirs my curiosity, or challenges me.

The sensation of color, the thrill of creating, and the surprise of abstraction are what drive me to paint. The intention in my practice is to engage the viewer on a visceral level, through the lushness of color, a purity of shape and form, and passion and exuberance I feel when I make art.

In 2012, Su completed the CE Core Curriculum Program at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts (Pafa). Su continues to study with Abstract teacher, Kassem Amoudi, and various instructors at The Art Students League of New York. Su has been published in The Philadelphia Inquirer, The Wild Roof Journal, The Woven Tale Press, as well as being interviewed on ArtWatch and Morning Edition radio.
