

Full of textural intricacies and compressed with a flattened perspective, Jaime Ellsworth's paintings are rich with depth and symbolism that rumble and unfold beneath her simple style.

Jaime paints in a cozy studio attached to a small barn at her home on San Juan Island where she's lived for 39 years. Her many dogs, mini horse, Pokey and donkey, Linus stand by munching on treats or lying down on comfy beds while she paints, it's her favorite place in the whole world.
