Institutional / Departmental Service

2019-20 Curriculum Development - I help to develop and revise curriculum in the Metals and Contemporary Art Jewelry department for both beginning and intermediate/advanced studio classes.

Budget Management - I assist in developing, managing, and formatting the departmental budget for beginning and advanced courses that are taught in the Metals and Contemporary Art Jewelry area. I purchase tools and materials that are needed for studio maintenance, as well as current and future classes offered in the department.

Studio Maintenance & Safety Committee - I serve as the contact person for the Metals and Contemporary Art Jewelry area and report to the University Director of Safety and Risk Management Services to keep the studio up to date on safety issues and policies. I help to facilitate safety inspections and training as needed. I also supervise student employees charged with supporting safety-related tasks and procedures.

Metals BFA Advisor - I advise current BFA students in the Metals and Contemporary Art Jewelry department through weekly meetings to critique their work. I also help to review and edit items related to their professional development, including artist statements, resumes, job and grant applications.

Metals Committee Advisor - I serve as a faculty advisor to the University of Wisconsin Stout student-run Metals club. I attend club meetings and give feedback on ideas for events such as the development of production lines, makers days, and fundraising sales.

2018 MFA Open Studios Planning Committee - I helped to plan and promote the annual public MFA Open Studio Day through social media and print advertisements. Programming for the day included artist talks, art demonstrations, and a community mural project. I participated in the event proper by meeting with members of the public in my studio and talking about my work.

Lead Contact - Radical Jewelry Makeover: Wisconsin - I helped to organize the Radical Jewelry Makeover drop off sites in Madison and acted as a contact for other metals and jewelry students throughout the UW school system. I promoted the event through social media, print, and radio advertisements. I also secured interviews with media outlets including local radio stations and the Wisconsin State Journal to generate awareness for the project. I transported finished work for the exhibition to UW-Milwaukee's Union Art Gallery.

2017-19 Mad Madison Metals President - As president of the metals area student club I was responsible for renewing the club's registration status annually, writing grants to secure funds for travel to conferences and visiting artists, and organizing sales.

Grad Representative - I was responsible for attending faculty meetings, acting as a liaison between art graduate students and faculty members, as well as organizing and installing exhibitions including yearly review shows and a trade show with grad students from the University of Minnesota-Twin Cities.

Courses Taught

Art 315/415: Metals and Contemporary Art Jewelry II/III

This course is an advanced studio and will focus on the development of three-dimensional objects created through traditional silversmithing and pewtersmithing practices. A continuation of technical skills is coupled with emphasis on conceptual development and critical thinking. Students will explore techniques such as raising, chasing and repoussé, forging, hollow forming, mold making, and casting through working with non-ferrous metals including: silver, copper, and pewter. Students will be expected to focus on the development of technical skills, personal vision in the art making process, and develop a basic understanding of the historical/contemporary context of metal objects, tableware, and hollowware. Topics covered in classes will include technical demonstrations, lectures, slide presentations, studio work time, group discussion based on readings, and group critiques.

Art 215: Metals and Contemporary Art Jewelry I

The emphasis of this course will focus on translating ideas into art forms. A technical and conceptual understanding of metalsmithing and art jewelry techniques will be developed. Course projects will emphasize the development of three-dimensional design concepts and traditional metal working methods for the manipulation of nonferrous metals; including silver, copper, and their alloys. Students will be expected to focus on the development of technical skills, personal vision in the art making process, and develop a basic understanding of the historical/contemporary context of art jewelry. Topics covered in classes will include technical demonstrations, lectures, slide presentations, studio work time, group discussion based on readings, and group critiques.

Art 101: Two-Dimensional Design Foundations

This course provides an overview of the study of the principles and elements of two-dimensional design and their application to the foundations of visual expression. Students will obtain a basic understanding of the elements of visual expression; line, shape, value, space, texture, color and the underlying principles of visual perception, organization, and structure. Through a series of studio projects, students will develop problem-solving strategies that enable them to combine and manipulate these elements and principles in order to interpret and communicate the visual language. Concepts will be explored using traditional and digital tools and techniques. Emphasis will be placed on exploration and experimentation, development of problem solving and critical thinking skills, gaining a basic visual vocabulary, and expanding one's understanding of and appreciation for the visual and applied arts.

Art 100: Introduction to Art

This course will function as both an art studio and lecture for non-art majors, exploring how artistic movements reflect various aspects of a cultural change and implementing multiple methods of making art. The focus of the course is on the development and application of critical thinking, observation, creativity, and methods of making while actively engaging with the artistic community of Madison. Through both theory and practice students will develop an understanding of the ways artists arrive at the ideas that inform their creative processes. The intellectual, cultural and physical components of the visual arts will be presented as an essential and interrelated whole. Art historical lectures serve as an overview of ancient through contemporary art practices including technological advances, and a consideration of geographic, thematic, and formal concerns.
