

WATER KERNER began creating art as a small child in New York. Born into a family of seven, it was soon obvious to school teachers and parents, Water would be destined to receive recognition for her creative talent. Water's early artworks were prominently displayed in school lobby cases on numerous occasions, a tribute to the young artist who graduated among 800 students in her High School class.

Water received her Bachelor of Fine Arts (BFA) with honors from the Maryland Institute College of Art in 1984. MICA is renowned for being one of the oldest and most prestigious art schools in America whose Alma Mater include the internationally acclaimed artists Jeff Koons, Amalie Rothschild, Gaia and the musician David Byrne of "Talking Heads". While attending MICA, Water was awarded the highly coveted Skowhegan School of Painting & Sculpture Scholarship. At Skowhegan, Water's talents were nurtured by a faculty of distinguished & luminary Contemporary Artists including: Francesco Clemente, Judy Pfaff, Mark di Suvero, Ed Moses, Ursula von Rydinsvard, and William Wegman. Upon completion of the scholarship, Water was honored by Skowhegan's Artists in Residence with the distinction of the "Sculptor Merit Award".

After college graduation Water worked in New York City at the flagship PBS TV station: WNET/13, Cornell University, New York Institute of Technology (NYIT) and Tape House Digital as a broadcast television Quantel Harry Artist, before moving to Los Angeles, California to launch her own creative animation studio. In 1992 she opened the pioneering studio L@it2'd ("Latitude"), known as the first company in California to create and deliver FCC approved high resolution TV and Film digital content & motion graphics, utilizing cutting edge hardware and software on Apple computers. Armed with talent and highly developed skills in art, design, editing, compositing and digital animation, Lati2d.com was creatively & financially successful from the moment the doors opened. The Broadcast Designers Association (BDA) invited Water to speak at the Apple New Media Forum in Singapore to share her creative process with Asian colleagues. When creative giants like Janet Jackson selected Water to create and direct her music video "Because of Love", it was clear Lati2d's unique "concept to completion" 2D & 3D content was successfully expanding.

Lati2d garnered a myriad of awards and recognition over the 17 years Water acted as President, Director and Chief Artist/Designer for the company. Prestigious clients included: Sony Pictures, DreamWorks Pictures, Paramount Pictures, Walt Disney Studios, Warner Brothers, Columbia Pictures, 20thCentury Fox, MGM, Microsoft, Virgin Records, Propaganda Films, David Fincher, Spike Jones, Cruise/Wagner Productions, Jim Henson Company, AT&T, Touchstone Television, Disney Channel, NBC, ABC, CBS, FX Networks, HBO, Discovery Channel, USA Networks, King World and Walt Disney Imagineering. Lati2d was also selected for inclusion in the Walter Annenberg USC Incubator program and 25 creative industry trophies grace Water's mantle at home, including two prestigious CINE Golden Eagles and the NAFDMA (National Association of Film and Digital Media Artists) Insight Award.

Since 2009 Water has continued to apply her visual talents creating sculptures and installations utilizing the magic of light, motion and/or sound in a 2000 sq ft. studio in Los Angeles. In 2013 Water was awarded a Solo Show: "Here Today Gone Tomorrow" in Ventura, California. Her sculptures have been shown in many cities in the United States and Internationally.
