

There is a quiet expansion of space in time. In that expansive space sits a clustering of material.

Accumulations building, and then breaking down, are the quotidian actions of our existence. These accretions and erosions are our histories traversing past to present through an immersive experience.

As a mixed media artist, I will be using video, prints, drawings, weavings, and installations to envelop the viewer into the daily passage of time.....taking the ephemeral and making it concrete.
