

Bio

Betty Winkler is an artist, author, teacher and a retired Licensed Creative Art Therapist (LCAT). In this latest career, she had a f/t position at a New York City psychiatric hospital, inpatient and outpatient, where she worked primarily with traumatized adults. With the intensity of this work, exhibitions were forsaken, although art production continued. Her visual art includes collages, drawings, etchings, paintings and artists' books. Betty has had group and solo exhibitions in numerous places, including New York, Lima, Rome. She has taught at numerous schools and workshops along the eastern seaboard as well as at Kala Institute in Berkeley, CA. For 25 years she was owner and master printer of Yama Prints, www.yamaprints.net, printing limited editions with a diversity of professional artists. She is the author of Carborundum Collagraph Printmaking, The Wednesday Poems and The Endurance Poems, available at www.lulu.com/shop. She graduated from Carnegie-Mellon University (BFA '76) and New York University (MA '08).

Creativity is a means of self-awareness, self-expression and a force of beneficial energy. It's a process, not only a finished material object. As both Creative Arts Therapist and fine-art printer, I have assisted others to explore their own unique self-expression. Throughout, I have been compelled to explore and express my own.
