

Artist Biography

Rebecca Cote is a visual artist living and working in Biddeford Maine. Her recent return to the studio after a long hiatus has awarded her exposure in several group shows in both Maine and Massachusetts. She creates art that reflects her long and intimate observations of and relationships with the natural world as a 20 year wilderness guide. She communicates nature's power, grace and interactions with dynamic gestures and subtleties of line and color, enticing the viewer to recognize and feel nature's energetic moments. Driven by a passion to connect people with their creative potential, Rebecca also designs and facilitates community art projects that generate the capacity for active agency; building positive identity, pride and ambition that facilitate cultural contribution while rejuvenating community collaboration. She has a BA from Humboldt State University and MEd in Community Art Education from Lesley University, is a certified Maine Guide and Wilderness First Responder.
