

TINY PAINTINGS

I am excited to announce my latest online class called TINY PAINTINGS which will begin on June 1.

In this class we will explore abstract designs and color. We will use two different products which I have not explored in depth before and I am very excited to show you what I have learned. The supplies shouldn't cost too much assuming you have the usual enameling supplies. The cost would be under $100 for the two new products we are using for class.

This class, like my others is online, in a private group on Facebook and will run for the month of June. After signing up, I will send you the supply list. Sign up early so you can order your materials and prepare for class. If you need more time it is never a problem, just message me before class ends.

Please have basic enameling knowledge for this class.

If you have taken any of my online classes before, you know I am available 24/7 for questions or comments for the duration of the class. My online classes are work at your own pace. I have had many requests for this due to the difficulty of traveling, scheduling and cost for traditional instruction. Previous classes have brought together hundreds of students from across the world. I use many detailed photos in the format of photo albums to show you my techniques step by step. (If you are someone who loves hours of videos, this is not the class for you.)

You will be entered into a private Facebook group with the other students and we will work together in a virtual classroom. We share comments, questions and our work. Even if you have a 9 to 5 job you should still have plenty of time to learn everything you need. For payment information and questions, you can contact me at annemargaretdinan@gmail.com.

Cost is $190. And you can mail a personal check or through PayPal.
