

Adam Brown was born in Orange, California and holds a BA in History from Oberlin College. After studying painting at the Corcoran College of Art and Design, he received a Post-Baccalaureate in Fine Art from Maryland Institute College of Art. His paintings have been exhibited in group shows at venues such as Gallery 31 at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, DC, bG Gallery at Bergamot Station Arts Center in Santa Monica, and TAG Gallery in Los Angeles. Recently, he was included in the group exhibition, "The Next Big Thing 2020" at Studio Channel Islands in Camarillo, California, juried by Leah Ollman, art writer and critic for the Los Angeles Times. He lives and works in Hudson, NY.