

William Morillo is a photographer and printmaker based in Chicago. His work focuses on landscape and the natural world, exploring the ways in which power and knowledge are constructed between humans and nature. The work takes the form of hand-made photobooks, prints, and drawings.

Morillo is originally from Raleigh, North Carolina and is currently pursuing a BFA with a focus in photography and printmedia at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago. He is in his third year of study and is the recipient of the institution's merit scholarship.
