

Commissions: If you've fallen in love with a piece but it's no longer available, not quite the right size or the palette is "almost" right, let me know! I will happily create custom artwork based on your space and budget.

Completion Time: Commissions can take between 4-16 weeks depending on the specifics of your piece and my current schedule and workload. There may be times when I can accommodate "rush" deliveries. The exact date of completion will be determined once all parties agree on the size and overall design, a deposit has been secured, and materials have been delivered (if applicable.)

The "completion date" is the date that I will send you an image of the completed piece for final approval. Once you have given final approval, there will be a 2-3 day waiting period for the piece to completely cure/dry before it can be packaged for shipping. Please note the "completion date" is NOT the delivery or install date.

Deposit: I require 50% prior to beginning the project, to secure your spot on my commission calendar. The remaining balance is due prior to delivery of the piece.

Agreement: I have a standard "Art Commission Agreement" that I require the client to agree to which clarifies all the details of the project, contact information, right of refusal, copyright, payment schedule, balance, shipping, delivery, etc. This written agreement protects both my interests and those of my clients, and ensures that both parties understand what is expected of the other.

Adjustments: Toward the completion of the piece, for acrylic/mixed media work only, I will send progress photos. At this point, if you have any concerns, it's important to communicate and in a timely manner so that we stay on pace for our completion date. By our completion date I will send a photo of the finished work, which you will need to sign off on. Although rare, it is my policy to allow up to two minor revisions to what I consider to be the "finished painting" before shipment or delivery. If you think the painting still needs adjusting, alterations will be $100/hour.

Altering a finished encaustic work can be far more challenging. And since the last few steps of my encaustic process will change the appearance dramatically, I am unable to send progress photos. For encaustic commissions I will complete the piece before sending photos. This is why clear and precise communication is so important. I don't do "mock ups" as they never have the same qualities as a finished encaustic piece, however we will discuss exactly what the finished piece will look like with examples from my previous work.

Cancellation: I will make every effort to create a custom piece that my client will adore. However, in the event that you are not satisfied with the final product, then you are under no obligation to buy the piece. You will be refunded half of your deposit, I will retain the other half to cover materials and my time. This has never happened, but I've been advised that it's a good idea to have a policy in place in the unlikely event this should occur.

Process: While I love hearing "do your thing" or "play!" – I also need your input! Good communication from all parties is key! Below are some helpful things to consider sharing with me. How would you describe the space in which this painting will be placed? What about the adjacent rooms? What is the overall feeling of the room? How do you primarily use this room? Are there any colors that you find off-putting? Be as specific as possible, the more information I have from you, the better!

If there are specific pieces of my past work that you are especially drawn to, please let me know which pieces and why (specific elements, colors, pattern, brush strokes, drips, motion, energy, etc.) likewise if there is anything from which I should refrain. Also, it is very helpful to see photos of the room where the painting will be placed. This allows me to visualize the piece in place as I am working. If you have fabric or paint samples you want to send that would be great, I'm happy to work within your palette.

Price: My work is priced using a formula which factors in the dimensions of the work, cost of materials, and the labor intensity of the techniques and processes used in creating the work.

Presently, I am not accepting commissions for work smaller than 24×24 – unless the project consists of multiple panels.

All price quotes are good for up to 2 months. During that time, if my overall prices have increased, I will honor the price you were originally quoted.

Custom Size for Works on Canvas: If you would like a special (non-standard) size, I can usually accommodate your request. If your size was not mentioned above, it is most likely considered a “non-standard size” and will need to be custom built. Please contact me for a price quote and completion time. Also note that it can take up to two additional weeks to accommodate the construction of a custom canvas size (ordering materials, labor, etc.) If you decide not to purchase the custom size commission, the deposit will be refunded, less the 25% commission fee plus the costs of the custom materials purchased.

At this time I am only able to do encaustic pieces in the panel sizes listed above.

Shipping: The client or project manager is responsible for all shipping costs associated with the safe delivery of the piece (including handling, materials, and insurance.) Depending on size and delivery destination, this can range greatly depending on the size and whether or not it needs to ship via freight. I will provide you with an approximate ground shipping quote before we begin the project. For pieces 36×48 and under I ship FedEx or UPS ground. This includes tracking & insurance. For larger work I use a freight shipping company who will pick up and professionally crate the art. This service can take an additional 5-6 days, and depending on your location can take 2-3 weeks for you to receive.
