

Wyoming Friends Meeting Mission Statement

The Wyoming Friends Meeting is unique in its geographic and demographic characteristics. Our meeting is made up of various small Quaker communities that are isolated by vast distances and often severe weather. We recognize that these unique characteristics place special stresses and strains on our worship communities and the meeting as a whole. We accept as our primary mission the creation of an environment within our meeting that energizes and strengthens the spiritual growth and physical well being of each member/attender. Furthermore, this primary mission will direct the management of the meeting's human, spiritual, and financial resources.

Within this primary mission, we feel the following items are especially important to guide our steps:

Our isolated location encourages us to engage with the broader Society of Friends. To encourage the growth of our meeting, we seek to show greater spiritual hospitality by becoming more visible, accessible, and welcoming to all people. We seek to be compassionate members of the entire ecological community of life. We aspire to be role models, and to let our lives speak the Quaker faith.

We wish to remind ourselves, that in all things, we hope to be led by the Inner Light.
