

Pamela Sherlock

Lives and works in rural Scott County, MN

Pamela Sherlock is a communications professional and also a photographer whose work delves into the intersection of identity, place, and memory. Sherlock's artistic practice encompasses both traditional and experimental approaches, with a keen interest in alternative processes. Her work has been featured in numerous exhibitions, including shows at the Minnesota State Fair Fine Art Show, Praxis Gallery, A Smith Gallery, and the New York Center for Photographic Arts. Notably, Sherlock was selected as an Artist Fellow for the 2023-2024 Minnesota Upstream and Springboard for the Arts program. Currently, Sherlock is Co-leading the group Likely Stories: A Photographic Journey through Climate Adaptations in the St. Croix Watershed. Her practice is evolving and beginning to incorporate gold leaf techniques with photographic media, creating works that fragment and reassemble images-mirroring ecological processes of destruction and potential renewal. By applying precious materials to representations of overlooked landscapes, she invites viewers to reconsider what we value in our environment and how these spaces inform our collective and individual identities. Her theological background further informs her artistic inquiry, raising questions about our responsibilities to place and how landscape shapes our perception of the world. She is also an alum of the Missouri Photo Workshop.
