

Judith Williams

I was born in Binghamton, NY. As an artist I have enjoyed a career spanning thirty plus years and many different mediums. My earliest influence was from my mother Dorothy Rutherford, who was one the many artists selected to do clothing design for the nationally syndicated "Tillie the Toiler" paper doll series appearing in newspapers around the country throughout the 30s' and 40's. I have been successful in faux finishing, trompe l'oeil artwork, and murals in both private and commercial settings. My figurative work is tonal, ethereal, and created in response to my love of the human figure.

I now live and work in Jacksonville,Florida. I studied art and design while in college in upstate New York. I won the annual art show at Broome Community College two years running, and received several other awards for my art work while studying there. I have also studied under James Bohary and David Shapiro while taking advanced painting classes at Binghamton University.

While living here in Jacksonville I have been in several group art shows, most notably in 2007 at Florida State College in Jacksonville with my former professor from Binghamton University, James Bohary.
