

(That's me playing the bass and my identical twin on guitar and another identical twin on harmonica.)

I enjoyed taking photos with a simple 35 mm film camera until I could no longer afford to develop them. It was always a hard choice to go in to the darkroom and isolate myself from all the happenings of interest of the moment (and my children) but there was a magic to be found in taking a closer look at what had caught my eye, my interest, my appreciation, my heart. (And with good things coming over the radio... all the better.) I had thought of photography as mainly a witnessing of art, but it came to feel like making art, if that is for example presenting a visual statement of personal meaning which you hope others can relate to. Thank you for visiting my outdated web site! May we all enjoy and appreciate our journeys and the mysteries of life to the best of our abilities and share in wonder.
