Linda Plaisted is a classically-trained American multi-disciplinary artist whose exploratory practices include photography, collage, painting and encaustic. Her work has been exhibited in galleries throughout the United States. She has also illustrated book and magazine covers for major publishers and contributed to art and literary journals.

As a pioneer in contemporary photomontage, each piece of artwork she creates tells a story by pushing beyond the boundaries of medium into myth, using traditions of collection, synthesis and reinterpretation. Approaching her work as both artist and historian, she employs her unique visionary practices to reveal the untold stories of women and the natural world; an effort to heal ancestral wounds and come back into harmony with nature. Layering pieces she has collected from her original photography and paintings, found images, ancestral documents and gathered ephemera, she creates photographic mixed media pieces with translucent veils of narrative and dreamlike moments of clarity and ambiguity that offer a sense of both time and space.

Plaisted's work represents the layers of time and memory bleeding through one another to create a thinly-veiled liminal space where our ancestors and ourselves can reunite to create fresh mythologies that, informed by the past, envision a transcendent future.

BIO

Linda Plaisted was born in Pennsylvania in 1967, educated at the Art Institute of Philadelphia, Temple University and George Mason University, where she earned degrees in Fine Art, Illustration and Literature. A 2002 Magna Cum Laude graduate of GMU, her final portfolio was recognized as the most creative in her graduating class. As a pioneer in contemporary photomontage, she founded Many Muses Studio in 2000 as a place to explore the marriage of many media. She has led private workshops and acted as artist-in-residence in public and private schools; teaching photography and art workshops. Having lived in the DC area for over twenty years, she currently lives and works in Frederick, Maryland. After a recent health hiatus, she is seeking studio space to pursue larger mixed media projects.
